Alaska Airlines generally allows passengers to bring one standard carry-on bag and one personal item on board without an additional carry-on fee. Your carry-on bag must fit in the overhead bin, while your personal item should fit underneath the seat in front of you.

Common examples of an approved carry-on bag include a small suitcase, travel backpack, or duffel bag. Personal items may include a purse, laptop bag, briefcase, or small backpack.

Passengers should ensure their bags meet the airline's size requirements before arriving at the airport. If a bag is too large to fit in the cabin, it may need to be checked, potentially resulting in additional charges.
